Palace Gate Corporation Certified As WBE by Cook County of Illinois

- Key Recognition as Women's Business Enterprise Awarded -

Evanston, IL, June 16, 2011 – Palace Gate Corporation, an information technology consulting and full-time placement firm, was recently awarded certification as a Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) by the Cook County Government in Illinois. The WBE certification helps to expand a company's visibility among business and government decision makers and enables female entrepreneurs to have equal standing with larger corporations when bidding for various projects and contracts.

Following a nine-month evaluation process, the final onsite compliance review was recently completed by a Cook County team member and the annual award presented. It is valid for a three-year period and enables honorees to enhance their business relationships.

"The benefit to Palace Gate Corporation and its clients is that we are able to support Cook County agencies and clients that support the entire county," said Sally Martin, Founder and President of Palace Gate. "This enables Palace Gate to better serve our local community and support our clients who have county contracts. Palace Gate Corporation is proud to be a successful women owned business and proud to support our local community."

Palace Gate is a Women's Business Enterprise firm, serving small, medium and Fortune 500 companies with top-notch technical talent, ranging from IT developers to senior executives for businesses seeking to draw top IT talent to enhance their operations and Web presence.
